

JOURNAL WRITING: A STORY ABOUT ME

Dear Parents,

The children have been learning a great deal about themselves. They have been talking about bodies and how genders are alike and how they are different. They have been learning about their bodies, including their genitals. Encourage your child to reflect on the session by helping him/her write or dictate a story in the journal. The story can talk about bodies and growing up, your child's gender, some things your child really likes to do, and anything else your child wants to include. Ask your child to illustrate the story.
